

How many parents over the past 45 years have lamented they can't enjoy Stanley Kubrick's 2001: A Space Odyssey with the family because the ambiguous imagery and complex themes fly over the heads of their woefully unsophisticated children? We may never know the answer, but the question clearly was on the minds of Howard Johnson's [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/05/2001-a-space-odyssey-explained-in-1960s-childrens-menu/>