

Advocacy groups are criticizing a vote by South Carolina legislators to cut the budgets of two universities that recommended gay-themed books — including Alison Bechdel's graphic novel Fun Home — to incoming freshmen as an attack on free speech and academic freedom. "This kind of censorship not only threatens the core of academic freedom but [...]"

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/02/advocacy-groups-college-respond-to-fun-home-controversy/>