

Using the British Library's "Comics Unmasked" exhibition as a springboard, the Department of History and Classics delves deep into history for a selection of medieval manuscripts that could certainly be considered as early comic strips. The library's Medieval and Early Manuscripts Blog gives a shoutout to the 11th-century Bayeux Tapestry, characterized by Bryan Talbot and [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/05/before-there-were-comic-books-there-were-medieval-manuscripts/>