

Funding cuts proposed to punish two South Carolina universities for selecting gay-themed books for their summer reading programs could open the door to First Amendment lawsuits, 10 free-speech advocacy groups caution members of the state Senate. The state House last week approved a budget that would slice $52,000 from the College of Charleston and $17,142 [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/03/cbl df-other-groups-urge-sc-senate-to-restore-funding-to-colleges/>