

Following the video on Friday, The Cleveland Plain Dealer's celebration of the 75th anniversary of Superman kicked into high gear Sunday with seven more stories, including a front-page feature. Superman was, of course, created in 1933 by teenagers Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, who lived in the city's Glenville neighborhood (spotlighted in that Friday video), [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/04/cleveland-newspaper-celebrates-supermans-75th-anniversary/>