

When she set out for Israel, Sarah Glidden was carrying some baggage — strong opinions about the country and some suspicion about the sponsor of her tour, Birthright, which provides all-expenses-paid trips to Israel for young Jewish people. “How shall I put it? ... When there is an expensive trip offered for free, there is [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2010/11/from-minicomics-to-mainstream-by-way-of-mocca/>