

Gary Edson Arlington, who in 1968 opened the San Francisco Comic Book Company, widely considered the country's first comic book store, passed away Thursday at age 75. His 200-square-foot Mission District shop quickly became a magnet for early underground cartoonists, attracting the likes of Robert Crumb, Ron Turner, Bill Griffith and Spain Rodriguez (the store's [...])

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/01/gary-arlington-pioneering-retailer-and-comix-guru-passes-away/>