

Activate cartwheels. The North American comics industry has crawled out of the hole it's been in to raise estimated profits of $715 million, the best it's been since 1993 or 1994, according to cautiously optimistic numbers analyst John Jackson Miller. But hold on. We haven't quite recovered from the mid-'90s crash quite yet. While a [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/02/number-crunching-comics-sales-units-are-the-thing-not-dollars/>