

Here's a terrific follow-up of sorts to the heartwarming story of Rayden Kahae, the 3-year-old boy who received a prosthetic "Iron Man" hand thanks to 3D-printing technology and the efforts of e-NABLE: There's also a Wolverine hand — with claws, naturally. The organization describes itself as "a network of passionate volunteers using 3D printing to [...]"

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/09/prosthetic-wolverine-hand-comes-complete-snikt-with-claws/>