

Delivering a crippling blow to the planned $520 million expansion of the San Diego Convention Center, a California appeals court ruled Friday that the hotel tax devised to fund most of the project is unconstitutional. Although hoteliers and city council approved the room surcharge two years ago, U-T San Diego reports the three-judge panel unanimously [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/08/ruling-leaves-san-diego-convention-center-expansion-in-doubt/>