

Illustrator and comics creator Sarah McIntyre has a new challenge for her fellow artists: Get some diversity into your characters. And by “diversity,” she means more variety in facial structures, because the fact is that often all an artist’s characters, especially female characters, look alike. Take Archie Comics costars Betty and Veronica, for instance: Same face, different [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2015/01/sarah-mcintyre-issues-the-nonidentikit-challenge/>