

An event like Comic-con International draws more than 100,000 people, and because of its popularity, certain groups will take advantage of the large crowds to have their voices heard. Aside from the artistic endeavors, pop-culture marketing and general excitement, during Comic-con, the streets of San Diego also became a platform for special-interest groups. Mistaken for [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/07/sdcc-13-using-comic-con-to-make-your-voice-heard/>