

Already the most expensive production in Broadway history, when Spider-Man: Turn Off the Dark closes on Jan. 4, it also will have racked up historic losses that The New York Times pegs as high as $60 million. That's compared to the $5 million to $15 million usually lost by "flops," which, granted, typically cost far, [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/11/spider-man-turn-off-the-dark-could-lose-60-million/>