

While it's unlikely to set any records on the Kessel Run, one Star Wars fan has made a radio-controlled Millennium Falcon that does indeed fly. What Princess Leia might view as a bucket of bolts is actually a hull crafted by Olivier C out of insulant, expanded polystyrene and attached to a quadcopter, which as [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2015/02/star-wars-fan-builds-his-own-radio-controlled-millennium-falcon/>