

A school board meeting in Murphy, Oregon, turned heated Tuesday when a board member went head to head with parents about Marjane Satrapi's graphic memoir Persepolis. According to the Medford Mail Tribune, the parents object to the availability of the graphic novel in the Three Rivers School District's high school libraries. Some contend teenagers shouldn't [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/09/tempers-flare-at-school-board-meeting-in-fight-about-persepolis/>