

Promoting her recent flick Jumping The Broom with Cinema Blend, Oscar-nominated actress Angela Bassett speaks shortly on her 'Dr. Amanda Waller' role in the Martin Campbell-directed Green Lantern film, the character's involvement, and more. "Well, I'm not 300 pounds," Bassett started, referring to the way that the character is drawn in the comics. Asking about her portrayal of the character, she said that she's actually "not heavily involved in the first movie," but does hope that she will develop more in the sequels. That said, in describing the character she says that she has "That intellectual, that bright, that no-nonsense, that means business [personality]. [She's] getting it done and in the trenches nothing fazes her." When confirmation came of the character appearing in the film, many instantly assumed Warner Bros. was opening the opportunity for crossover films, that would eventually develop to a Justice League film. But with recent news of Green Lantern's

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=35403&t=Angela_Bassett_Speaks_Briefly_On_Her_Amanda_Waller_Portrayal_In_iGreen_Lanterni