

First off, Thor beckons in my humble opinion as Marvel Studio's best offering to date, and trumping Iron Man 1 is no easy feat. It was extremely splendid and basked in the Asgardian glory we hoped it would. Its resilience at the box office is nothing but a boon for future sequel(s), as well as The Avengers...and further Marvel Studios forays into bringing our beloved characters to Life... Now onto some things that people have not even mentioned on CBM or anywhere else...or if they have, it's not spoken of much...it's got a lot to do with the comics, as the modern JMS run under the likes of art-connoisseurs Olivier Coipel, Marko Djurdjevic and Gabrielle Del Otto as artists (interior design and cover), in some way, shape or form, came together to help fashion and script this film via JMS himself, with Mark Protosevich. JMS' run was highlighted by his Thor cameo,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/THURSDAY17/news/?a=36456&title=Anil_Ricklys_IThorl_Film_ReviewEditorial