

To read the full article over at USA Today, simply click on the link at the bottom of the page. Guided by writer Geoff Johns and artist Jim Lee, Justice League will begin its first year with an updated secret origin reflecting DC's new initiative, giving the group a reason for coming together that it lacked when the league first appeared in 1960. And while it will ultimately boast 14 members, at its core will be DC's A-list do-gooders: Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman, The Flash, Green Lantern and Aquaman. "The approach is very much about who they are behind the masks and how they interact together and how these personalities mix," explains Johns, DC Entertainment's chief creative officer. "With the world's greatest superheroes, how does that team actually work? Do they all get along? Being able to pull together and see how that relationship is forged and continues to grow has to

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=38451&t=COMICS\_Full\_Image\_And\_More\_Details\_Revealed\_For\_New\_JJustice\_Leaguei