

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=28931&t=COMICS_Marvel_Inadvertently_Reveals_The_Identity_Of_The_New_Venom

"My problem with Venom as a lead character is that he's such a bad guy," Amazing Spider-Man editor Stephen Wacker told Comic Book Resources in a recent interview. "It's hard to make him a hero when he's eating people." However, the site go on to reveal something even more interesting. The identity of the new Venom! He said that Flash Thompson would be a great host for the Venom symbiote, and the pitch was built from there. Wacker did not realize he was not supposed to reveal that Flash was the new Venom. "You're giving it away!" Remender said. There was general laughter. I'd figured this one out since it was announced that a member of Spider-Man's supporting cast would be bonded with the symbiote! A great decision by Marvel though I think. You can read the entire interview with both Wacker and writer Rick Remender by following the link at the bottom of