

While fellow user spideyboy revealed a detailed description of the first teaser trailer for Marvel's The Avengers, and that it'll play out in the post-credits scene of next week's Captain America: The First Avenger movie, Moviehole has not only revealed their detailed description, but also what occurs in Captain America's present-day closing sequence. With a spoiler warning, read on! First off without going into spoilers, it was pretty good. Not the best Marvel movie of the summer (That one goes to X-Men) but the action sequences were good and the acting was surprisingly good as well (Tommy Lee Jones stands out and Chris Evans shows he can carry a movie on his own). Now for the information, the scene that was filmed in NY with Chris Evans and Samuel Jackson is not an after credits scene, it is shown as the last scene in the movie. It has Captain America waking up

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=41952&t=Detailed_Description_Of_iCaptain_America_The_First_Avengeris_Closing_Sequence