

As comic fans, we are living in a time of great expectations. Comic book movies are being filmed and released at a pace some never dreamed possible. It wasn't very long ago that seeing our favorite superhero on screen was a pipe dream if our favorite hero didn't happen to go by the name of Superman or Batman and even then, what we were given may or may not have lived up to expectations. The amount of "believability" our heroes could convey on screen was directly related to the limitations of the special effects technology available at the time. If you weren't happy with a stiff flying Superman or a body builder size HULK, there was no other option than to accept it for what it was (the best thing going at the time). You could be watching a film with your favorite hero, a well written story with great acting,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=36255&amp;t=EDITORIAL\_iTHORi\_and\_iGreen\_Lanterni\_The\_Next\_Step\_in\_CBM\_s