

Although full reviews of X-Men: First Class aren't expected to hit until the 25th of this month, Fox have allowed a couple of sites to share their thoughts on the movie before Wednesday. Below are a few excerpts from those posted at Bleeding Cool and Hey U Guys. Be sure to follow the links below to read them in their entirety. The first comes from Bleeding Cool, the full version of which you can read HERE. First Class contains some of the briskest and most efficient storytelling I've seen in any recent blockbuster. An awful lot happens, and awfully quickly at times, but it's all clear and while some nice moments might be over in the blink of an eye, this can only reward repeat viewers. There's a sequence later in the film, from which much of the material for the "character trailers" was gathered, that actually uses split screen to crack

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=37700&t=First_Impressions_Of_X-Men_First_Class_Hit_The_Web_Before_Full_Reviews