

In the latest issue of SFX Magazine, actress Hayley Atwell speaks in great detail on her 'Peggy Carter' role in Marvel & Joe Johnston's Captain America: The First Avenger, and what she adores most about the character in the '40s era. Also discussing preparation, and praise of leading co-star Chris Evans, and possibly what Cap will do during USO sequences, check out the interview below. So what kind of preparation did this role demand? It's all come from the physical training. I trained with a guy called Simon Waterstone, who's trained Bond and Jake Gyllenhaal for Prince Of Persia, and he really put me through it. More than anything, Peggy is a woman succeeding in a male dominated world, and she's slightly resentful of that. In a way she feels she has a lot to prove. All of that came from training; just getting into that mental preparation of trying to push myself

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=37714&t=Hayley_Atwell_Speaks_In-Depth_On_Peggy_Carter_In_iCaptain_Americai_And_More