

We seem to be hearing quite a bit from Conan the Barbarian star Jason Momoa these days. He has been promoting Game of Thrones fairly steady. Below is the latest the actor had to say about Conan from DigitalSpy. "A lot of people are like, 'What's it like being in the shoes of Arnold?' but it's not a remake of the 1982 film. There's just such a bountiful amount of Robert E. Howard stories. So it's taking a couple of Robert E. Howard stories, the same legendary character and throwing him through that." "Fans of Arnie, unfortunately I'm not Arnie and I'm not going to try to do anything remotely like Arnold. I think what I tried to model myself after was the things I was inspired by, the stories and Frank Frazetta. "Both my parents are painters and I grew up doing that and being an artist and I saw the Frank

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=35549&t=Jason_Momoa_on_Frazettas_iConan_the_Barbariani