

The folks over at Digital Spy have posted, via Twitter, Mark Millar's comments over the recent addition to the cast of Superman: Man of Steel "Can I just say that Amy Adams as Lois is inspired casting? She's the best big-name actress of her generation and Lois SHOULD be in her thirties," he wrote. "She's won a Pulitzer and kinda given up on guys by the time she meets Superman. She can't be a 25-year-old. She needs to be formidable and Donner got this when he cast 30-something Kidder opposite 24-year-old Reeve. It's why Kate Bosworth didn't work." Superman: Man of Steel is expected to swoop in cinemas everywhere next year in December.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/6of13/news/?a=34049&t=Mark_Millar_Feels_That_Amy_Adams_Casting_As_Lois_Lane_Is_Inspired