

In my never ending quest to bring you news that you really didn't care about, I bring you more information on the film that is likely to be one of the cheesiest you'll ever see. Monster Brawl is a film that pits the many monsters of legend against one another in a tournament. The throwdowns are set in a cursed and abandoned graveyard and include ring announcers and a referee...of course. The always awesome Fangoria received a new poster for the film, which gives us a good look at the monsters that will be featured in the film. Phantom City Creative, who created the poster, is also the company behind the film's animations, motion graphic and title sequence. We can expect a trailer for this cheesy goodness soon. A website for the film was also opened up, which gives viewers character bio's as well as information the actors involved in the film.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/geekboymovienews/news/?a=35597&t=iMonster_Brawli_Site_Launched_New_Poster_Revealed