

What's Playing have some possible news on the still not definitely happening Terminator 5. This movie was supposed to mark the return of Arnold Schwarzenegger to the franchise, but his recent "troubles" were thought to have brought any return to the big screen to a screeching halt. Well, maybe not. The site also reveal that fast Five director Justin Lin is still on board and that rights holder Megan Ellison is still determined to get the movie made. There is also the possibility of a JJ Abrams' Star Trek style reboot. Here is an excerpt from their report.. While Schwarzenegger may not be yet ready to return to film, considering recent events, and has temporarily put his Terminator reprise on hold, Ellison and are still keen to get going on the movie. From the sounds of things, the big guy does have a fairly substantial role in the new story - which

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/roorschachsranis/news/?a=38928&u=Paul_Walker_Wanted_For_iTerminator_5i_Movie_To_Be_A_Star_Trek_Style_Reboot