

The following video interview from Collider is well worth watching. Screenwriters Miller and Stentz discuss various aspects of working on the first Thor and how they think it turned out. They talk about being replaced by Don Payne and reveal they were never approached to write the sequel, as well as their sadness that Kenneth Branagh won't be returning to direct Thor 2. There is much more too, check it out.. Here is Collider's rundown of what they discuss.. :34 They talk about what it's like to have two huge movies—Thor and X-Men: First Class coming out around the same time. 3:01 Did they all of a sudden have a ton of phone calls coming through once Thor opened big? They say it even started a little before the movie opened, but got more intense once it was released. 4:48 They had a project that they were sitting on until the week Thor came out,
