

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=29376&t=Stunt_Scene_Description_For_Spider-Man_Reboot_Reveals_TWO_Webheads

Earlier today, dozens of images from the Los Angeles set of Marc Webb's Spider-Man reboot revealed Spidey suited up, taking on a "car burglar". And while the same suit we've seen in images prior to this was on the scene, so was another though "dark-eyed". Well, the folks at MTV have received a description from the photographer of the images below, which includes both spider-men, revealing exactly what they saw unfold as the cameras rolled. "The Spider Man Reboot films a scene involving a car burglar and two Spider-Man's which both appear on camera. In the scene, Andrew Garfield in character as Spider-Man is hiding in the back seat of a car that a car burglar attempts to steal. The spooked thief exits the car to escape but is taken down by a second Spider-Man as Spider-Man number one (Garfield) watches the action through the backseat window. Both Spider man's were also