

Elvis Presley, the Beatles, Michael Jackson, Justin Bieber...all have been pop culture icons in the United States but none of them were as big as Superman. In the 1940s Superman conquered America in virtually every form of media at that time. He starred in multiple comic book titles, on the big screen in movie serials and animated shorts, on the radio, and also in the newspapers. It was the golden age for the newspaper industry...

Read more: http://www.mania.com/comicscape-superman-sunday-pages-1943-1946_article_139294.html