

After a full day of panels I returned to whence I began, Empire Stage, for another big one, this time presented by the distinguished competition. Gone were the charming advertisements – apparently someone thought better of them – and now we simply waited, glancing occasionally to the silent screen which informed us that we were [...]

Read more: <http://weeklycomicbookreview.com/2013/10/19/my-nycc-experience-pt-3/>